THE DESMOND SISTERS AND SHERMAN THOMPSON,
Trio Appearing This Week at the Park Theater.

Among the passengers who arrived here by the Wilhelmina on its last trip were the Desmond Sisters and Mr. Sherman Thompson, who open tonight in singing and dancing at the Park Theater. During the voyage here, these three vaudeville artists gave a performance on the Wilhelmina and secured immediate attention among their fellow passengers. At the time, it was suggested by one of the passengers that they take up a collection and try to reserve the Honolulu house where the Desmonds and Thompson were to play for the opening night. This was done and when they reached Honolulu, arrangements were made with Manager Congdon to keep a portion of the reserved section of his house for the Wilhelmina passengers. They will be there in a body tonight for the first show and only a limited number of tickets will be sold until after 8:30 p. m. This new act at the Park comes well recommended. Mr. Thompson being the author of a number of songs which he sings so as to carry you back to the old plantation.

Carl Wallner, a hold-over from the last week's bill, will give some rare imitations and sing some new songs. Sonny Cunha's orchestra will furnish good music as usual. The feature film tonight will deal with the life of Christ.

PUBLIC MEETING ON HARBOR LINES

this information he wrote to the Secretary of War, pointing out that it would seem undesirable to let this wharf be constructed as an independent thing, while it would be better to have the harbor lines determined. There was some delay in Washington, but the week previous Major Winslow had received a reply from the Secretary of War, who authorized him to go ahead with the determining of harbor lines.

Major Winslow had decided to hold a public meeting at which all those interested in the harbor lines could be present and express their ideas on the subject. He had chosen Thursday, July 14, on account of the fact that in that week both the Wilhelmina and the Mauna Kea would arrive here, giving Honolulu people who might want to attend the meeting a chance to take either boat. The meeting would be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Major Winslow asked Judge Parsons if he would allow the courtroom to be used for the purpose. He had, added, received offers for the use of other halls, but the government desired, whenever it was possible, to hold such meetings in government buildings. Judge Parsons answered that the courtroom could be used for such a purpose at any time the Major wished to have it.

Major Winslow stated that all those directly interested in the harbor such as owners of waterfront property, steamship companies and others would receive formal notice of the meeting, but every citizen was welcome to attend and to offer suggestions. Before the meeting was held maps would be prepared in Honolulu which would show the proposed harbor lines. These maps would, however, serve only as a basis for discussion and there would be nothing definite about the lines which they showed. It was probable that the lines would be drawn more or less parallel with the coast line, and that they would extend from the Waialua river to the breakwater. A copy of this tentative map would be sent to Honolulu some time before the meeting was held in order that the people here might get an idea of what was proposed.

The harbor lines would in no case extend beyond the beach, nor would they in any case interfere with the property rights of owners of waterfront property. They would merely show how far out wharves could be built, but there would be nothing to compel the building of wharves or which would otherwise disturb the owners.

Major Winslow stated that the breakwater was making satisfactory progress. Nothing could be said about when the next appropriation would be available. An item of $200,000 for the breakwater was included in the Rivers and Harbors bill, and the bill had now gone to the conference committee. The item had, however, passed both the Senate and the House, and the conference committee therefore had no power to change or eliminate it. As a consequence this amount would be available as soon as the Rivers and Harbors bill passed. When this was done projects for the next piece of breakwater construction would be made. When these had been approved by the authorities at Washington, specifications would be drafted, and, as soon as these had been approved in Washington, bids would be called for.

Major Winslow stated that Superintendent of Public Works Marston Campbell would be present at the public meeting to be held here. As a matter of fact, the committee is much interested in the attitude which Campbell will take in the matter, as this bears more or less directly on the plans of the administration in regard to the disposal of the government land which runs all the way from Waialua to the breakwater, and beyond. There are a number of people who have leased government land in the Reed's Bay section, who are very anxious to buy their holdings from the government, while there are many others who would like to acquire lots along the strip of land on this side of the breakwater. Whenever these propositions have been taken up, Campbell has invariably answered that nothing could be done until the harbor lines had been determined. While, as Major Winslow states, the harbor lines will not in any way affect the beach property rights it is evident that they will have considerable effect on Campbell's plans in regard to the government land, which presumably include the setting aside of certain portions thereof for wharf and warehouse sites, as well as for roads to lead to the wharves.

THIEF MAKES BIG HAUL OF VALUABLES

Yesterday morning the Wabine Kapu Club was entered, and valuables and cash to the amount of $400 stolen. It is thought that the rooms were entered between the hours of 4 and 6 in the morning and that the thief, or thieves, went through all the apartments that were left unlocked.

None of the members of the club missed their valuables till the afternoon, and the first intimation of the robbery was when one of the boarders could not find his purse. This aroused the other members, and soon it was found that the house had been gone through.

Watches, stick pins, rings, cuff-buttons and cash had been gathered in by the thief, and among the victims were Merle Johnson, Martin Grune and Victor Hurd. The former did not miss his watch till he got to Fort Shafter, where he went to take part in a shooting match. Chief of Detectives McDuffie started to work on the robbery case as soon as he got word of the affair, and he has a clue that may lead to the arrest of the thief. The fact that a pair of Japanese slippers were found outside the house, is thought to be a blind put there to divert suspicion from the real thief.

FAMOUS NOTLEY CASE IS ENDED

Details of Contest That Has Been In Court
For Years

(Special Correspondence)

Hilo, Hawaii, June 17.—In 1902 Charles Notley, the father of the Home Rule leader, died.

Last Wednesday the executors were finally discharged and the estate wound up by an order by Judge Parsons. This marks the end of the litigation which has been raging for the past eight years, on Hawaii, in Honolulu and in Washington.

The order shows that the executors made their accounts showing that on March 10 there remained in their hands a balance of $48,827.51, and the accounts are approved. The executors are ordered to pay a fee of $200 to the master, costs of court in the sum of $107.55, while they are allowed $241.66 for attorney's fees, all of which sums are to be deducted from the balance mentioned above.

The executors are further instructed to collect from Mele K. Notley, the widow of the decedent, the sum of $16,098.60, this being a third of the expense of the administration of the estate, legal expenses in connection with the will contest, bills of the estate, maintenance and taxes and other expenses in connection with the homestead. Upon payment of this sum the executors are to deliver to the widow five hundred shares of the Hamakua Mill Co., which have been held by them as security for this payment.

The executors must also collect from Emma Danford the sum of $2158.25, this being two-thirds of the expenses in connection with the maintenance, taxes and other expenses of the homestead. They must also collect from Emma Danford and pay over to the Territory the sum of $1983.35, which is the inheritance tax as appraised by the master.

Finally the executors are instructed to deliver to the trustees of the estate, Cecil Brown and Anthony L. L. L., the sum of $48,275.29, as mentioned above, and also the sums of $16,098.60 and $2158.25, amounting to a total of $66,535.16, as well as all other property remaining in their hands.

The executors were represented in court by Judge Stanley, while the Notley family was represented by Mr. Anderson, of the firm of Kinney, Ballou, Prosser and Anderson.
